HONOLULU - Volunteers from Lanakila Meals On Wheels spent their Christmas taking meals to Hawaii seniors, in hopes that no one was home alone and hungry for the holiday.

Anita Miller was alone at her apartment at Punchbowl Senior Housing for Christmas, but not for long. James Wong and his granddaughters loaded up a hot meal and gift bag from Meals on Wheels.

"I think that I'm so fortunate to have my good health and family life and I think I should just do something for the community," Wong said.

He brought his college-age granddaughters along to teach them about the true meaning of Christmas.

He said he'd never met Miller but knows seniors appreciate the meals.

"They're all by themselves, the majority of them," Wong said. "They're all really happy."

Miller accepted the meal with gratitude and enjoyed it before going to spend Christmas night with her son in Pearl City.
